THE STREETS OF NAPLES.

they Are the Workshops of the People

In the Roorer Quarters. The ancient city of Naples has always been more celebrated for its beauty and interest of its surroundings than for its own attractiveness or scenic advantages. The charm of Naples itself lies in its life-the careless, open air life of its people, with much of it passed almost wholly out of doors under the gaze of the passerby. The Neapolitan is the most buoyant, light hearted creature in the world and, it must be added, about the most indolent. The streets are bright and moving pictures. Many of the people, men, women and children-when these latter are not innocent of any clothing-are garbed in strange and somewhat gaudy costume, with bright colored kerchiefs on their heads. In the poorer and more populous quarters all handicrafts and occupations are carried on out of doors, and the streets are as busy as beehlves. Tailors are seen at their work, and carvers of lava, tortoise shell and coral articles, makers of statuary, women sewing, cooking and performing all their domestic duties, men, women and children eating, sleeping, chattering, playing, singing, all in the open. There is no cessation to the noise and bustle in the streets from early morning, when the tinkle of goat bells starts the day, until the evening, when countless mandolin players, wandering from house to house, from trattoria to cafe, "singing for their supper" of macaroni and red wine the famous old love songs of Naples and popular operation rately decorated harness, the cries of innumerable street hawkers, the playing of military bands as regiments march through the streets, fill the air with a not unpleasant and thoroughly Neapolitan din.-American Travelers Magazine.

All day long the rattle of wheels, the cracking of whips, the furious shouting of drivers, the jingle of the elabosirs.

BREVITY APPRECIATED:

Japanese Courtesy Was a Bore to Both

Oriental and Englishman. Oriental courtesy takes up a great deal of time and on that account is not always appreciated in western lands. as is shown in the following extract from Yoshio Markino's book on Englishwoman, "Miss John Bull," in which "I used to live in Greenwich, and thence I attended to the Japanese naval office in the morning, then to the night school of the Goldsmith institute. It was nearly 11 o'clock every night when I arrived at my diggings. I was deadly tired. The landlord asked me every evening: "'How were you getting on with your work today?'

detail of my work at the office and the school. One day I said to my land-"'Why is your husband giving me such a troublesome question? You

"I always answered him every small see. I often feel too tired to answer.' "She patted me and said: "'My poor boy, you need not give him all information of your work. It is our custom to say "How are you getting on?" and if you simply say "All right" that will be quite enough."

"The next evening the old man put the same question to me. At first I rather besitated because I thought such an abrupt answer might offend him, but I got courage at last when I saw his wife giving me some sign in her eyes. I shouted loudly, 'All right!' To my surprise, the old man seemed more satisfied than to hear the details. "Since this event I began to incline to have more friendship with John Bullesses than John Bulls!" The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by all druggists.— (Advertisement.)
